The present invention relates to a process for the fabrication of a semiconductor device, and more particularly to a process for fabricating a semiconductor device of high integration by the employment of a two-level interlayer dielectric film. In the step of fabricating semiconductor integrated circuit devices, it has been a conventional practice to provide on the surface of a substrate a silicon oxide film or silicon nitride film as an interlayer dielectric film, and then to provide a conductive layer which is used as a wiring layer, such as an aluminum layer or a tungsten layer. It is also a conventional practice to provide in the spaces between metal wiring layers a silicon oxide film which is called "an interlayer dielectric film" and this silicon oxide film is frequently made of polycrystalline silicon doped with impurities such as fluorine. It has been considered that such an interlayer dielectric film constitutes a capacitance insulating film. This interlayer dielectric film is required to have characteristics such as etching resistance, water repellency, 1cb139a0ed
