The primary objective of Merchant Marine Rules of the Road is to promote compliance with the United States Merchant Marine Safety Code, which in turn supports high vessel safety standards by ensuring that all international shipping is conducted in compliance with international maritime law and rules. The Rules of the Road provide a minimum set of standards by which vessels are required to comply with in order to protect life, property and the marine environment. While the Rules of the Road are not a regulation, their inclusion in most international and domestic conventions, charters, and treaties ensures that a vessel is not required to conduct its operations in any manner inconsistent with the rules.
