Q: Can't set environment variables for node.js I'm trying to run a node.js server from a.bat script which is launched from the windows shell. The.bat script looks like this: set PATH=C:\Program Files odejs;%PATH% node index.js When I launch it the only error I get is Win32Error: The system cannot find the file specified What am I doing wrong? The full script can be found here. A: The first line is setting the PATH environment variable. The second line is using the value of PATH to try to run the node index.js Only one of them will be in the path, so they cannot both exist in the PATH. Therefore, make sure that your PATH does not include a path to nodejs. By Mark Hosenball,

NBC News The Administration's disclosures of secret phone calls have raised questions about whether intelligence operations overseas are in line with U.S. and international law. But the murky waters into which the Administration has plunged itself may extend beyond the issue of legality of intercepting phone calls. As the Obama Administration, CIA Director Leon

Panetta and others make the rounds of TV talk shows, it appears that there are two leaks at issue. The one which is less explosive and more widely known is about calls made from the U.S. to foreign countries by CIA agents posing as a journalist. According to a report on CNN and cited in the Washington Post, the Administration is insisting that the Justice Department is looking into the operation. But there is another - classified - leak under investigation: the disclosure to Reuters of an NSA program to crack the encryption of secure phone lines around the world. The technique, which is called "wiping," is a highly secret operation which the NSA says 82138339de
