The KEYMACRO tool is a set of free macros for Windows that allow you to easily perform several actions with the keyboard. For instance, you can write an alias for a command like OPEN or TYPE to perform these tasks quickly. Over 11,000 actions have been integrated into the tool so you can create any keystroke sequence you want. Besides, you can bind keys to custom actions and command line windows. In addition, you can use macros to launch any command from the command line, or combine more than one macro to create a more complex shortcut. The macros can be saved in a data file and imported to any other keyboard layout. KEYMACRO Keybinds: Below you can see a complete list of the keybindings included in the tool. Plus, you can find a separate table with the keybindings used most commonly. The settings for the macros shown below are saved in the keymaps.xml file. Note: To make the main toolbar and the application icon less visible, uncheck the Hide buttons, taskbar, taskbar and status bar boxes under the General section in the Options dialog.
