The aim of this study was to investigate the distribution of macrophages, lymphocytes and mast cells in murine experimental proliferative vitreoretinopathy (pV). The aqueous humor, vitreous body and extraocular muscles (EOMs) including the superior oblique (SO), inferior oblique (IO), rectus (RE), superior rectus (SR), inferior rectus (IR), transverse (TR) and superior rectus (SR) muscles were obtained at different time points (0, 7, 14, 21, 30 and 60 days) following the streptococcal cell wall protein G (SCWP-G) injection. Macrophages and lymphocytes were identified by immunohistochemical staining for CD68 and CD3, respectively. The mast cells were identified by toluidine blue staining. Immunohistochemical staining showed that macrophages were present in all the EOMs and increased with the time. The numbers of macrophages in the SO, IR and SR muscles at the end of the study were significantly greater than those in the RE, SR and TR muscles ( $p < 0.05$  and  $p < 0.01$ ).
