circle. The line goes into the left circle. Then I draw a blue line from the right circle center to the left circle center. I need to connect the two circles by the two lines which have different colors. How can I connect the two circles by the lines which have different colors? I tried to do it manually, but I am confused when the line intersects with a circle. A: You could use the following approach: select the red line. Shift + drag in the 3D viewport, or click the shift arrow in the 3D viewport, to rotate it horizontally, then drag it to the blue line. unselect the red line. delete it. select the blue line and use the Add Spline Curve option in the 3D viewport to connect the two circles. The result is: A bill in the Ohio legislature would require that all teachers in the state be credentialed, regardless of which district they teach in. "[H]ow many of you are ready for another class of very talented, experienced, qualified teachers to join your staff, only to find they don't

shower. I go downstairs to make
breakfast, and he's done it. I'm making a grocery list. He's done that. I'm putting away stuff in the kitchen, and he's done that. I'm getting ready to take him to church. He's ready. I go downstairs, and he's

walking out the door.
Then he gets in the car and heads out.
He's buckled up. He's strapped on his helmet. He's ready. I
take him to church.
Then I go to work.
I'm doing the same
things for myself.
I'm doing the same
things for the business. I'm doing

the same things for my children. You see,
it's all in that
cycle of going
through the motions.
It's all in the
cycles of going
through the motions.
I just left a
restaurant that had been known for its Sunday brunch. I've been to this restaurant many times before, but this was the first time I was there after attending an 8:00 service on Sunday morning.
