Free.Q: Evaluating

$\int_0^{+\infty} \frac{\sqrt{x} e^{-x}}{1+x^2} dx$ I would like to calculate the following integral

$I = \int_0^{+\infty} \frac{\sqrt{x} e^{-x}}{1+x^2} dx$ I tried using that $\frac{1}{1+x^2} = \frac{1}{1+x^2} = \frac{1}{(1+x^2)^2}$ and then using integration by parts:

$\int \frac{1}{(1+x^2)^2} = \frac{1}{1+x^2} -$

$\int \frac{1}{1+x^2}$ But I'm stuck

Microtubule dynamics of murine macrophages are selectively perturbed by microtubule-stabilizing agent nocodazole and microtubule-destabilizing agent colcemid. To evaluate roles of microtubule dynamics in the activation of murine macrophages. Bone marrow-derived macrophages (BMDMs) were isolated from wild-type C57BL/6 mice or mice expressing the YFP-tagged beta(1)-tubulin. The cells were cultured with microtubule-stabilizing agent nocodazole or microtubule-destabilizing agent colcemid, then fixed and stained for F-actin with Alexa 647-conjugated phalloidin and counterstained for microtubules. Microtubule dynamics were evaluated by evaluating GFP-EB1-labeled microtubules and YFP-tubulin in live cells.

Microtubule rescue frequency was evaluated by bleaching YFP-tubulin in live cells. BMDMs isolated from YFP-tubulin expressing mice had stronger and longer microtubule-decorated phagosome formation than BMDMs from wild-type mice. Microtubule-stabilizing agent nocodazole increased the phagosome formation in both wild-type and YFP-tubulin expressing BMDMs, while microtubule-destabilizing agent colcemid decreased it. YFP-tubulin expressing cells had lower microtubule rescue frequency than wild-type cells and YFP-tubulin expressed cells in the presence of colcemid had significantly lower microtubule rescue frequency than wild-type cells in the presence of colcemid.

The present study suggests that microtubule dynamics regulates the activation of macrophages.

Q: Using Python's mysql connector, how can I INSERT INTO a MySQL table using a variable as the table name? I would like to insert data into a MySQL table using variable names as the table name. I'm using Python's MySQL connector. For example: `parm1 = 'test_table'` `parm2 = 'foo'` `INSERT INTO ${parm1} VALUES (${parm2})` The `${parm1}` variable contains the name of the table, and I want to insert
