Thioredoxin-disulfide reductase (TrxR) catalyzes the regeneration of inactive thioredoxin from oxidized thioredoxin. Reaction of TrxR with oxidized thioredoxin is a key regulatory reaction in response to oxidative stress. We here show that thioredoxin-like peptide reacts with L-selectride, a reversible inhibitor of TrxR, to form a mixed disulfide in which the active-site cysteine of the thioredoxin-like peptide binds to L-selectride. The active-site cysteine of thioredoxin reacts reversibly with L-selectride in a similar manner. The mixed disulfide product is formed with a 1:1 stoichiometry even in the presence of oxygen. The product was purified in a highly stable form in high yield by a single-step affinity chromatography on thioredoxin-Sepharose, followed by reverse-phase high-performance liquid chromatography, and characterization of the peptide was performed by N-terminal sequencing and chemical analysis. Reaction of thioredoxin with L-selectride is an effective strategy for the efficient synthesis of thioredoxin derivatives, and will provide a useful approach to chemical analysis of proteins.
