The efficacy of continuous tibial nerve block in the treatment of painful degenerative joint disease (DJD) is uncertain, and although it is well established that continuous sciatic nerve block is efficacious in controlling pain in patients with spinal and peripheral nerve compression syndromes, its efficacy in the treatment of the painful degenerative condition of the knee has not been fully established. This study was designed to evaluate the effectiveness of continuous tibial nerve block in the treatment of painful degenerative joint disease of the knee. Thirty-three patients with bilateral knee DJD were randomized into three groups (n=11 per group) to receive continuous sciatic nerve block
