The first action RPG in the fantasy world of the Sword of the Stars series. Epithelial-to-mesenchymal transition in epidermal growth factor receptor-mediated tumor progression. The epidermal growth factor receptor (EGFR) is deregulated in several types of human carcinomas and is often associated with poor prognosis. Upon ligand binding, EGFR can activate several signaling pathways that promote tumor cell proliferation, survival, migration, and invasion. However, the relative importance of the various transduction pathways initiated by the activated receptor in EGFR-mediated tumor progression remains poorly understood. In this study, we demonstrate that loss of the protein phosphatase, PP2A, can drive a reversible EMT in non-tumorigenic HaCaT keratinocytes, an event that is associated with EGFR-mediated cell migration and invasion in vitro. Mechanistically, loss of PP2A leads to the dissociation of the signaling factor, E3-ubiquitin ligase Nedd4, from EGFR. In addition, the tumor-associated hyperactivation of EGFR leads to increased p38 MAPK and Erk1/2 activities in mutant PP2A cells, and pharmacologic targeting of these pathways attenuates the invasive phenotype of these cells in vitro. Collectively, these data identify a novel, PP2A-dependent mechanism that contributes to EGFR-mediated tumor progression. In addition, our data suggest that hyperactivation of EGFR in human tumors may lead to the loss of PP2A, which in turn results in a shift in the balance between E3 ligase and dephosphorylase activity and thus alters the spatial and temporal distribution of the EGFR/EGFR-tyrosine kinase inhibitor, gefitinib, in the tumor microenvironment.

New amide derivatives of 5-fluorouracil as ribonucleotide reductase inhibitors. A new series of 5-fluorouracil-thiouracil derivatives have been synthesized and tested for inhibitory activity on cloned ribonucleotide reductase (Pcr and LmR2) from HeLa cells. The R-enantiomer of compound 1 and particularly its enantiomer 22 displayed a potent inhibitory activity against both Pcr and LmR2 enzymes: IC₅₀ = 1 nM versus Pcr and 9 nM versus LmR2. In addition, enantiomer 22 was more antiproliferative than 1 in cell lines sensitive (HT-29 and PANC-1) and resistant to 5-fluorouracil (7R2000) in vitro.
