The Stardust Galaxy ProjectQ: AuthenticationController does not exists I need to use Basic Authentication on the rest api on my angular 2 app. I found a solution, but it does not work. I add this code to the constructor of my AuthenticationController:

ngOnInit(): void { let headers = new Headers({ 'Authorization': 'Basic'+ this.user.userName + ':' + this.user.password }); this.auth.defaultHeaders = headers; this.authService.authenticate() .subscribe( data => this.auths, error => this.authsError ); }

But if I type on the browser url /api/mycontroller i get : Unhandled rejection Error: Uncaught (in promise): TypeError: AuthenticationController does not exists I put the Service and the Controller in the /src/app folder and in the app.module.ts i have providers: [AppComponent, { provide: HTTP_INTERCEPTORS, useClass: Basic

Top-Three Defense Impedes BSU Falls in OT
Westwood, CA—With the offense struggling to gain any traction, and the defense unable to generate any decent offense of its own, the men's basketball team fell for the second consecutive contest, losing Wednesday afternoon, 71-62, to Claremont-Mudd-Scripps in the annual "Lucky 13'." The Colonels (1-1) opened the game on a 10-0 run and took a 30-22 lead into the first media timeout of the game. After a layup by Westwood's guard Tre Scott, the Bulldogs (1-1) fought back into the game with a 14-2 run to tie the game at 32-32 on a layup by a player named Don. The Colonels

Consequences of partial deletion of the ubiquitin-coding sequence in myogenic cells for ubiquitin protein synthesis and degradation. Ubiquitination is an important biological process. Deletions or mutations of the ubiquitin-coding sequence have been found in some Duchenne muscular dystrophy patients. To further investigate the physiological function of ubiquitin proteins, we generated MyoD-myf5 cells with a C-terminal deletion of four ubiquitin residues (C-sub1, C-sub2, C-sub3 and C-sub4) and found that neither the ubiquitin protein synthesis nor its degradation was affected. However, when C-sub1, C-sub2, and C-sub4 were mutated to alanine, the ubiquitin protein synthesis and degradation were significantly decreased. To further explore the reasons for the decrease, we found that the protein levels of some components of the ubiquitin proteolysis system, including the E3 ligase MuRF1, the E2 conjugating enzyme UbcM2, the E3 ligase BTRC and the proteasome components, were decreased. Moreover, during the growth arrest induced by serum starvation, the protein levels of components of the ubiquitin proteolysis system, especially MuRF1 and the proteasome components, were increased. Moreover, proteasome activity was enhanced during the growth arrest. These results indicate that the C-terminal deletion affects ubiquitin protein synthesis and degradation, possibly through interfering with the ubiquitin proteolysis system, and thus influences the growth arrest of myogenic cells.

CpG oligodeoxynucleotides of influenza virus: development of new anti-influenza drugs. There are approximately 150 CpG dinucleotide stretches in the genome of the virus, which cause immune suppression in mammals. In addition, CpG oligodeoxynucleotides (ODNs) can mimic bacterial DNA, trigger an effective host immune response, and be used in gene therapy. Immunostimulatory CpG ODNs can be the basis for the development of new drugs for the prevention and treatment
