Instead, simply open it in Open Office (as a.odt or.odp file) and then compress it as a.zip archive before importing it to Google Contacts. (You may also compress a.txt file and import it as a.csv file.) It is very important that you do not have a large number of contacts (100 or more), a file size of less than 1 MB, or a compressed file size of less than 10 MB. Before starting: make sure that you have a backup of your data file (File > Export > Export to an Archive File...). make sure that you have Internet access so you can download updates. Google Contacts is updated every few months, so you may have to wait until the file size limit and/or file size limit are increased. Note: You can open compressed files in many applications, including Microsoft Word and MS Office 2007 and 2010. If you import to Google Contacts from a file that has been compressed in Word or MS Office, it must be opened in Open Office. Import a File Containing a.zip Compression: Import a compressed file using File > Import > Import from a compressed file in the following steps: Launch Google Contacts. Open an email. b7e8fd5c8
