For Train Simulator® 2015, Southern Pacific purchased 247 powerful new Electro-Motive SD45T-2 diesel-electric locomotives for use on its mountain routes. The locomotives are true 6-axle units, equipped with 6-8 wheel trucks, 6-speed W-B electric gear, and a 3,600 horsepower Power-Tech power unit, with dual Mitsubishi engines. These locomotives bear on their frames a large and clearly visible speed lettering advertisement, as well as spray-painted speedometer, recorded at 70 MPH, with an "SP" speed code. The SD45T-2s are the most powerful locomotives in the company's long line of versatile "Dash 2" range of locomotives. The "T" in their designation stands for "Tunnel." They are a fresh addition to the company's fleet, and for their speed, power and ruggedness are to be found on every one of the railroad's mountain routes. All of the locomotives are painted in "Tunnel Motormer" liveries, in SP's primary colors of scarlet and grey. Thirty are known to bear the main company livery, illustrated here, and provided with a numbered, hand-painted cast window, and another ten are known to carry the "Speed Lettering" livery, illustrated here. Of the 247 locomotives, sixty were initially deployed on the Cascade Line, a difficult mountain route also known as the "Coyote Line" and stretching from Klamath Falls, Oregon, to Ellensburg, Washington. The remainder were placed on Southern Pacific's stretches of the Donner Pass and Tehachapi mountain lines. The pack also contains scenery covering the Cascade Line, with four detailed liveries, including the classic red and gray color scheme of SP. There's also a snow wall which can be applied to a platform. The locomotives can be brought to bear in the Donner Pass route available separately (a purchase separate to the add-on pack) for Train Simulator. The name, "Southern Pacific Tunnels," has been coined for this add-on, but many people often simply refer to them as "Tunnels"! Train Simulator's southern California scenery has been carefully recreated in this add-on
