Oh My!" (From the official website) "It's incredibly rich fantasy with a fantastic amount of content." "The culmination of everything the development team wanted to add to the vanilla game comes together well." Titan Quest(System) "Titan Quest's expansion packs are generally more polished than their "vanilla" counterparts, and this content is no different." "The expansion packs are substantial enough to warrant a purchase, though." Titan Quest(Trade) "This is the best of the nine add-on packs. If you ever think about playing Titan Quest again, get this add-on." Titan Quest(Trade) "If you've read my discussion of Monster Quest, you know that I almost never give a game 5 stars, and that I almost never buy a game I own used... But Titan Quest and Monster Quest cannot be played together. So in all honesty I should be recommending this as a purchase rather than a rental." Titan Quest(Trade) "If you've never played TQ before and have never wanted to, this is a fine expansion pack to get acquainted with it. Otherwise, get Monster Quest." Titan Quest(Trade) "If you're a fan of the game, be aware that this expansion packs is going to be a fairly expensive, epic content purchase (about 2 hours worth of gameplay, according to the sellers here on Steam) since it's probably the best expansion pack out of any of the whole series." Titan Quest(Trade) "If you're wondering if you should get TQ, the answer is yes." Titan Quest(Trade) "This is the most interesting and best expansion to Titan Quest, if I may say so myself, and I'm very happy to see it receive a unique port." Titan Quest(Trade) "I'm not a huge fan of the 'enter a world' business model, but if you do it right, expansions will be content packs instead of pay-for-play expansions like the Dark Messiah series." Titan Quest(Trade) "An expansion that was long overdue. This is the most unique, and best, of the expansion packs that has been made to Titan Quest."

CrackEldenRing.com - The Official Website. [New screening method of malaria in at-risk areas: the clinical and parasitological aspects]. The effectiveness of a new malaria screening method to detect infections in two at-risk areas has been evaluated in a randomized study of low-cost interventions. From November 1991 to July 1993, the programme consisted of four activities: (1) regular microscopical examination of all children aged 6 months to 14 years in three villages of Ouangoun and Tohoua Districts in Côte d'Ivoire; (2) full parasitological examination of all children (n = 1559) with positive laboratory results; (3) systematic treatment with mefloquine in children with positive blood films (n = 11); (4) community-directed campaign. Study endpoints were (1) proportion of children found to be infected with malaria (or anaemia) and (2) proportion of children treated and subsequently cured. No deaths were observed in children treated. Two hundred and fifty-two (37%) of the 652 children with positive blood films had no fever or history of fever. Among these, parasitaemia was detected by other screening methods in 176 (67%) and haematocrit in 114 (43%), and 49 of these children (23%) were treated at home for 3 days. Among the 26 children with no fever or history of fever and a parasitaemia  $\geq 2$  gametocytes/microliters of blood, only 15 (57%) had a positive rapid antigen test. Twenty-five children (10%) with positive laboratory results had no fever or history of fever. Twenty-four of these were treated with mefloquine and cured. Using the pre-elimination threshold of gametocytes in the blood (i.e.  $> 2$  gametocytes/microliters of blood), the sensitivity of the rapid test was 46.9% and the specificity 99.7%. A questionnaire was administered to the mothers of children treated by fast track for 3 days. Among 496 mothers of children treated in the 4-month study, 43% of the mothers stated that the treatment was
