The Weardale & Teesdale Network is the main railway line within County Durham, England. It is the route that the National Express East Anglia InterCity 125 takes from London Liverpool Street to either Newcastle or Carlisle, carrying both freight and regional passenger services such as the Borders Express. With 128 miles of track, the Network links Keighley and the Scottish Borders at Hawes Junction to Ingleton and Waskerley, through Hemsby, Bilsborrow and Marske with Shap to Sedgefield, Seaham, Middlesbrough, Hartlepool, Sunderland, Newcastle and Bishop Auckland. The game has been designed for use in Train Simulator. You must take full responsibility for the route and for your vehicles. It is not a game where you will be hiding behind the driver's wheel - the scenery is accurate and the routes are varied. The Network was constructed in the 1960s using the right-of-way as it was then. It has been updated with modern technology. You will encounter many of the Network's stations, bridges and viaducts. You will face speed restrictions, shunting challenges and obstacles. The Network is full of lesser known places and, most importantly, there is plenty of variation in the types of engine and trains that can be run on it! You can read more about the Weardale & Teesdale Network here: To find out more about the Network, visit the official site or facebook page: East Midland Railway Facebook: Twitter: Direct Link to East Midland Railway : About the East Midland Railway: The East Midland Railway is a popular railway museum in Keighley, Yorkshire, run by volunteers. It has many steam and diesel locomotives, a heritage train and its own carriage collection. It has a fully functioning workshop in which locomotives and rolling stock are restored or constructed. It has a large collection of wagons, rolling stock and a large selection of steam engines for excursion trains. A museum shop is also open with a wide variety of memorabilia and gifts. The railway is open every day except Christmas Day between Easter and Hallowe'en.Q: c9d1549cdd

Ever since its release in 1991, the Diablo II: Lord of Destruction shareware version of Diablo I has been a beloved classic and massively addictive action/RPG that created an entire genre. From 1997 to 2000, Blizzard Entertainment developed Diablo II with the community in mind, and it took its title as one of the most popular action games around at the time. With this massive expansion, we hope to provide everything you have come to expect from a Diablo experience: the Dark Souls RPG mechanics blended with an addictive and addictive. The expansion will also include the same items, classes, items, enemies and bosses, as well as a few exclusive new items and a soundtrack.

Features: 3 New Classes: Assassin, Crusader, Monk Armors: The Black Robes A Monk can use the Sublime Isk to reroll skill orbs, and the Celestial Wreath to duplicate skill orbs Elite Monsters: The Possessed Crusaders are the most elitist kind of monks. They build their skills and techniques, constantly protecting and even calling upon allies to aid them. The SkullKnight is an armoured Monk. Its job is to defeat the enemy while carrying them away. Unique Monsters: The Sorcerer: The Sorcerer is a powerful being, the only one who can obtain the Heart of a Demon. He is a Master of Life magic, and its most important of all the Surges is the Drain Life ability. Don't expect any fun things for the Devils: The first upgrade you'll do on the Devils will be the Inferno Staff. The Inferno Staff will be the first weapon that gives the Devils the ability to fire big energy balls, and use it at a friendly target or the enemy. Most of the Devil items are a reward for finishing the game on 'Master Difficulty'. Notes: * Title only seen in the game. * The version used to the game was Diablo II 1.006, same as the first official release. * The expansion was released on the 16 of July. EVERYTHING YOU NEED TO KNOW: 1) The version in the game is the original Diablo II, not the Diablo III and not the expansion. 2) The Paladin is the only class which can take the head off a monster. 3) Heroes have now lower health and damage, and monsters have higher health and damage.
