The present invention relates to a cathode ray tube, and more particularly to a cathode ray tube having a superior CRT performance, in which the wall of a funnel neck is improved. Generally, in a cathode ray tube such as a color picture tube or a color cathode ray tube, the electron gun is disposed in the neck portion formed at one end of the funnel. The electron gun includes a triode for selecting or focusing a beam and a screen electrode. The triode is constituted by a set of three electron beam generating elements. Two of the three elements of the triode are coated with a vapor of an alkaline earth metal having a low work function such as an oxide of barium or calcium and barium or calcium oxynitride. The screen electrode for forming the screen of the tube is formed by applying a vapor of an alkaline earth metal having a low work function, such as oxide of barium or calcium and barium or calcium oxynitride, to an inner surface of the funnel. FIG. 1 shows a cross-sectional view of a conventional cathode ray tube. In the drawing, a cylindrical frame 2 formed in a neck portion 1 is welded to the funnel 2 formed integrally with the neck portion 1. A screen electrode 4 formed by applying an alkaline earth metal having a low work function to the inner surface of a funnel 3
