Star Salvager is a fast-paced, space-themed action game in which you must save your space ship from the evil pirates. As you collect loot, your ship will grow bigger and stronger! Key features: – 27 levels – 3 ships – Around 10 weapons – Includes Achievements and Leaderboards – Saved state between continues – Interact with objects and characters – Customize your space ship, it's weapons and appearance – Use and research new weapons and power ups – Excellent sound effects Links: Today we are going to take a look at an expansion for FateCore 2: Galactic Survival, which we already talked about here. This expansion, called Galactic Market, will be available when the main game is released. We're going to talk about some of its key features, as well as our opinion of it. The quest to be a galaxy-leading merchant As mentioned above, Galactic Survival is a fully fledged trader game. This means that there are several quests available to you, and that you can decide to pursue all of them. However, the market is the most important thing. Once you collect enough credits, you will have the option to buy things from another trader, and a market will appear. Also, you will be able to progress through the game without completing all the quests, and now the market is part of what you do. You will have to spend your credits to upgrade your "stock" of goods, and to buy new stuff. The Galactic Market comes with around 20 new items, including weapons, ships, and trading stations. The size of the market depends on how much you have earned through trading. If you have not spent all your credits yet, the market will only be small. However, as you complete more tasks in the game, the market will grow larger. The Galactic Market will also contain events, which represent certain scenarios that will happen in space. Something like an asteroid that will cut the ocean will be an event that will trigger the events in the Galactic Market. You will also be able to choose which event to present, so you can plan your purchases ahead of time. As an example, if a pirate attack is going to happen, you will know, before spending your credits, that you will have to buy some missiles. The new weapons The Galactic Survival has a few weapons, but it has a couple of new ones that are completely different. The new weapons are 4, each of Belgium (1) - 1910 Belgium is not only a highly-developed country, but also a culturally-rich one, as literature offers proof of. The two National Museums in Brussels, the Royal Museums of Art and History, have worked for more than 40 years to collect and preserve the national heritage. Our guide, Corinne, is working as a Keeper for the "Royal Museums of Art and History". One of her most important tasks is the construction and protection of museum collections, as Corinne says, "It is not a question of having collections, it is a question of building them and preserving them. Our collection is as valuable as the country's berets." As the Belgian National Science Book Fair is an opportunity for our National Public Libraries and National Museums to attract people and get acquainted with them in a friendly atmosphere, we asked Dumpsters for a beautiful presentation of historical figures of Belgium and a chance to collect ideas and experience. We met Veronique, a designer from the City of Mechelen, who has been working as a graphic artist for her whole life and who we could ask anything we wished. Below is the presentation of the history and personality of Belgium in one short video: Millions live in Belgium, as it is an inexpensive and the most populated country in Europe, offering a peaceful and rich social scene. The economic and social welfare system, expressed through the Belgian social security system, has boosted the quality of life of the people. This social security system covers an ever broader sector of Belgian society. In the early 20th century, the contribution of women to Belgium was enormous. Their participation was everywhere visible, female participation was absolutely necessary. With over 65% of the Belgian population belonging to the female gender, we will be able to visualize the invaluable support that women have always and systematically offered the whole of Belgian society. During the post World War II period, the Belgian economy grew. War reparations brought Belgium much money and the welfare policies saw that Belgian people had a better standard of living then ever before. As we will see, this have brought significant changes in the history of our National Family. The advent of the new century marked the entry of Belgium's first Prime Minister, Auguste Beernaerts, to the position of the Kingdom of Belgium. His leadership has seen economic growth in Belgium. However, the first few years of his government, were marked
