"4. 3. 2. 1... Move!" is a simple 2D top-down puzzle game in which you have to build continuous chains from the dots which fall down to the bottom of the screen. Your game consists of adding a single dot (a brick) to the currently selected dot in such a way that the chain becomes longer and longer. You have to think of the right time to add the bricks in order to maximize the size of the chain and make the game as easy as possible for you. Simply tap and drag the dots that you want to add and create chains to your liking! Do you love Sudoku? If so then Sudoku and Blocks game is just what you are looking for. A classic puzzle game has returned! The game consists of a grid of square boxes and a large box in the middle. You have to fill the empty boxes in order to complete the grid. There are two modes of play, you can either use a 9x9 grid or a 7x7 grid. The game can be played by one or two players. The best scoring puzzle game of 2017. ===== If you like the game please remember to share the fun! Cheers! ===== "Yet another surprising sequel. This time though, if you are familiar with the genre you will enjoy it very much. The graphics are pretty and the gameplay is simple, while the game is quite easy to master. Keep on playing and you will enjoy the puzzles." "I liked the game very much. To make the game short, this game needs more memory, but it is a very good memory game." "Great! A great game with a very nice and clear concept." ===== You can play this game on your tablet, computer or smartphone. What's new in Furry Shakespeare: Dashing Dinosaurs Amp; Sexy Centaurs: Winter's Tale: Donation Station:

The Song of Saya: A Dragonling Outcast is the first novel in American writer C. Robert Cargill's crime fiction series The Song of Saya. The main character, Saya Noichi, is a teenage girl in Japan. She was born in the same town as Boris, the son of a reggae band leader. Plot summary Based on Gabriel Range's summary and the e-book. "The Dragon Ring" The story follows Saya, as she waits, plagued by bad dreams and strange occurrences, for her mother's return from the north. Meanwhile, the grief-stricken Dixie sidles about in the background, unable to sleep or eat, consumed by grief for Zina. As Saya begins to feel a new presence in the neighborhood (potentially this disturbance could be her growing sickness), she finds a nugget of gold, without which she is certain her mother will not return; it is all she has to give. "The Iron Ring" In the shadow world of Kisaan, Kyoko Anako is tied to a chair, her hair shaved, her eyes blindfolded, while the masked cultists enumerate the ways in which she may be punished for defying them: forced to watch her brother's beheading, tortured to reveal the location of the lost treasure of a lord of Persia, sterilized, and made pregnant, then forced to give up the child. Leaned forward in her chair by razor-sharp claws, her once-beautiful face splattered with blood, Kyoko begins to beg. She can feel the resulting pain - the marks on her body are only the first of what she is certain will be a legion of torturous encounters. As Saya awaits the birth of her child, Baba, the former Oda Clan warlord of Dajio, tells her that she may leave Kisaan but will never succeed at finding what she is looking for; always, she will be found, sipping tea with a companion in a glade that will forever ring false, her feverish eyes forever blinded, her heart forever hungry. "The Turtle Ring" In the cave, unable to decide whether she belongs to Kisaan or to Oda, Tsutomu tries to find some shred of memory of his existence outside it, some remnants of his true being, which he believes are buried in the things he has created. He is still unsatisfied with what
