Quality management in sports medicine is often embedded in the sports medicine service within the hospital. This article describes a program to implement and evaluate medical quality management at a sports medicine service. A quality circle was formed to develop and implement a quality improvement plan for the sports medicine service. A national standardized injury prevention program was implemented for high-risk patient groups. A minimum data set template was developed, and a hospital incident reporting system was set up to facilitate data collection and analysis. A computerized medical record was implemented to enhance the collection of data and facilitate accurate documentation. To date, the quality circle has received 17 formal audits, 3 of which were voluntary self-audits of the new computerized record. Three sports medicine physicians were actively involved in the process for their first round of medical audit. Audit standards of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations were used to assess the quality of care provided by the sports medicine team at the hospital. There was an increase in the number of audits of the sports medicine services that were seen at the hospital, although no significant improvement in the quality of care was shown. A quality improvement plan was developed to help enhance the quality of medical care provided to sports medicine patients. An internal quality circle was formed to coordinate the process. A minimum data set was developed for the sports medicine practice. A hospital incident reporting system was established to facilitate documentation and evaluation of the quality of care provided to patients. A computerized medical record was developed to facilitate the collection of data.Hemorrhagic shock-induced ischemia/reperfusion injuries in the remote myocardium and kidneys are reduced by hemodilution and post-ischemic therapy with dexrazoxane.
