

We've often looked to good bloggers, such as you, for their thoughts about the latest features that they get to use in their OS. However, here, we also look to great websites with the purpose of giving us a report about the latest version of the OS and try to analyze, compare to previous versions, and ultimately test them. In my case, yum is not updating Packages for a couple of weeks, and then it updates them. It is doing this for EVERY package on the system that is not manually updated. So, for example, it will be updating the installed xorg-x11-server-core package, but not the new version that was just released. So, why doesn't yum update all packages at once? I have 3 yum repositories that are set up and working correctly; why is it that these need to update every couple of weeks? A: yum still uses the /etc/yum.repos.d configuration files to decide which updates to perform. Some of these repositories may be configured to update upon receiving new updates for the package. It is not uncommon for yum to miss updates for a period of time while it scans the system to see what updates are available. You can change this behaviour by setting a specific time for yum to scan (repository "polling interval"): # yum --setopt polling-interval=2h install foomatic-rip" or to only scan in a limited set of specific repositories: # yum --setopt polling-only=group:update You can use yum for a full system update in a similar manner: # yum --setopt polling-only=local,updates,repolist:/etc/yum/repos.d/* In addition, yum provides a command named refresh which does what it

It looks like this: I want to to have the last Item always display the name of the owner. Is there a way to do this? I tried just adding a Textbox to the combobox and having it's AutoCompleteType set to Owner but that didn't seem to work. Any ideas? A: You could put it in the Items collection, using the Text property: Logan Couture's NHL career has been a pretty good ride so far. As you remember, he scored the first goal in franchise history on his NHL debut against the Pittsburgh Penguins. He has racked up a Stanley Cup Final MVP, a Hart Trophy, and a Conn Smythe in his past three years. It's safe to say he's been one of the league's best third liners for the past few seasons. But despite all of this success, Couture is not a guy that should be mentioned alongside the likes of Sidney Crosby or Chris Kunitz when it comes to the possibility of a trade. He is a rental player who is never going to be traded to a championship team. Advertisement Let's start with the salary-cap issues. The Sharks own the 29th overall pick in the 2012 NHL Draft, which means they
