preliminary evaluation of postnatal growth monitoring in East-Germany based on an analysis of multiple births]. In this first of its kind prospective study in postnatal growth monitoring the authors report on data of the so called Baden-Wuerttemberg-Register (BW-R), which records data of all multiple births in the so-called paediatric regions of Schwerin,

Günzburg, St. Gallen, Esslingen and Mühlhausen since 1984. From 1992 on the BW-R data are completed with data of cases which were not identified or registered in the BW-R by the physicians at the various hospitals with maternity wards in this area. This paper deals with the data of the BW-R and the data on the cases which are not registered, it is shown that the mean birthweight of twins in the BW-R is 585 g less than those of singletons and triplets. It is recommended to expand the BW-R data base with these unregistered data to achieve a valid reference group with which the distribution of twins and triplets would be representative of the distribution of singletons in Germany. A Japanese company will unveil its first EV in April 2020. A series of impressive milestones will follow as the company pushes for its EVs to be on roads by 2025. Yoshimi Inaba founded Japan's first electric company in 1960. He started off by selling battery packs and spare parts for electric vehicles. Now he will also sell cars. In 2020, Inaba Motors will start the sale of its first EV, the Mazda Protege, in Japan. The car will be 100% electric, with no option for a conventional petrol or diesel engine. The carmaker describes it as a "true zero-emission vehicle" (ZEV). The company will also retrofit existing petrol and diesel models to run on
