The Office of the Ombudsman. An Office of the Ombudsman offers a service to the public to ensure that its rights and justice are upheld. The Ombudsman handles consumer complaints to the Council and has an elected Ombudsman. An official Court of Appeal. The Court of Appeal reviews the decisions of the lower courts, with the final appeal to the Supreme Court. Director: Guy Nattiv Release Date: 2000-06-20 Movie Types: Documentary Runtime: 107 min. Country: USA A good old man and a good old woman. Scene: A Funeral Alex and Yolanda are standing in front of a massive grave containing the bodies of his father and his mother. The old man has begun to cry, and Yolanda has turned away to hide her tears. They see the coffin of their dead son, Sean. Alex and the old man move closer to view it and point their eyes at the hole in the surface of the box. The old man uses a pocketknife to dig through the cardboard box. He pulls out a lock of hair from Sean's head, and places it on the grave. The old man wipes away the tears from his cheeks. The man and woman are played by Jack Webb and Mary Tyler Moore. Yolanda, who is played by Vickie Schratz, joins them. In fluent Spanish, she hugs the old man and kisses him on the cheek. The old man turns his head as if to say goodbye. They walk away and the camera then focuses on the coffin of Sean. The scene fades out into a shot of the living room of the old man's house. Alex and Yolanda are sitting on a sofa, talking about their son. Alex: He was a good kid. Smart. I was proud to be his dad.

Yolanda: That's why I'm still crying. Sean looked forward to getting married. He always wanted to meet a nice girl and have a baby. Alex: He was my best friend. My kid brother. He loved to eat. Like his old man.

Yolanda: I'll never forget the time he brought me a Cadbury bar. So I wouldn't eat all the candy. Alex: Every day he wanted to do something
