A citizen familiar with military life says a senior officer in the Canadian Forces has been removed from his job due to concerns about his professional conduct. Speaking on the condition of anonymity, the person said Lt.-Col. Rick West is a reservist who served for two years in Afghanistan, becoming well known within military circles for his expertise in firearms, precision driving and night vision technology. The person said the dismissed reservist has no fixed address and travels between Ottawa and the east coast. The news of West's removal was confirmed to CBC News Thursday by Department of National Defence spokesman Sgt. Richard Mercier. "In accordance with the process, the individual remains a member of the Reserve and their employment with the Canadian Forces has been terminated effective Aug. 31, 2018. The matter is under investigation by the Canadian Forces National Investigation Service," Mercier said in an email. In a statement, the office of Canada's Defence Minister Harjit Sajjan told CBC
