Ask HN: Can you trust what Twitter says regarding your app popularity? - adrianhoward The first day of a new year often gives people a chance to check how well their apps are going - and 'Last Week in Apps' and App Discover seem to be the two main places they're tracked. The other day I noticed that Twitter had tweeted something about how my app was doubling in popularity, with hundreds of new users over the last week. It was obviously news to me and a bit of an overstatement given I'd been off the radar for a bit. So I checked the Twitter profile for the application and it now seems to show 2200 users. Seems a bit of an overstatement to me. It has a few more tweets and so on, but still doesn't seem that many. Are there any stats on the fallibility of Twitter stats that others are aware of? ===== wmf There is no way to know how many users actually saw your tweet or retweeted it. ~~~ adrianhoward Fair enough 6d1f23a050
