I have an application, that has a TreeView control and "Add" button, and in case of click on "Add" button I need the TreeView selected. To do this I have written code like this if (tv_summary.SelectedItem!= null) { // Do something } and private void AddTreeView() { foreach (TreeViewItem item in tv_summary.SelectedItems) { item.Selected = true; } } What I am doing is every time I click on "Add" button, I am checking if the TreeView has any selected item then it means that the "Add" button is clicked, when I click on it again the check if the TreeView has any selected item again, and so on, but the problem is the time it takes to check if TreeView has any selected item. I need to optimize my code that if TreeView has no selected item then it should be checked and if it has then it should not be checked again. Please provide me the optimization code. Thanks, A: Use TreeViewItem.Checked instead. Basically, your code will become: private void AddTreeView() { foreach (TreeViewItem item in tv_summary.SelectedItems) { item.Checked = true; } } BTW: if you are using System.Web.UI.WebControls in your project (if you are, then use HtmlTableView or GridView instead) then there is a similar property called "SelectedIndex" so you can use that instead. Q: Find the point of intersection of a segment and a circle I am trying to find the point of intersection of a segment $ AB$ and a circle whose center O and radius $
