This really is truly spectacular and could among those rare amazing. The excellent was great all around. Management, graphics and visual effects were all extremely innovative as well as brilliant. The pleasure in the script, often humorous and contains lots of heart for everyone his characters are very well developed. April 14, 2012, Kama Sutra 3D in Hindi 3D (2012) was an off-shoot of the Indian film Uda Punjab, and led by director Rupesh Paul from Flying Machine Productions, the film was set to release in late May. As with the release of Uda Punjab, the film was slated to be released on the day of the Indian general elections on May 6, 2012, but the release was postponed for two months as the ruling United Progressive Alliance was in talks with the Bollywood cast and crew for tax breaks. The film's Indian premiere occurred during the World Gurdwara Peace Prize celebrations in Delhi in September 2011. In December 2011, it was reported that the producers had a title change in mind, and that the new title was Kamasutra 3D, in a bid to capitalise on the market's rapidly growing appetite for 3D media.
