Microsoft Windows 7 Sp2 Iso 390

so ive used the windows 98 iso you gave to create a virtual machine, and its up and running fine. ive just booted into it and it looks and works the same as my actual win 98 machine. what do i do now? i dont want to upgrade the hardware! just need to install a few programs to make it useful. i know. ive got xp, vista, and windows 7 working fine in virtualbox. and ive got windows 98 up and running perfectly fine in virtualbox. i think you might be getting confused here. you mentioned several times that you were going to install windows 98. this is what i did: i created a virtual machine in virtualbox. in this case i used the windows 98 iso you gave to create a virtual machine, and it works fine. ive just booted into it and it looks and works the same as my actual win 98 machine. what do i do now? i dont want to upgrade the hardware! just need to install a few programs to make it useful. so ive followed your instructions, downloaded the windows 98 iso, and created a virtual machine. it booted up fine, and looks and works the same as my actual win 98 machine. im just having a bit of trouble installing programs. when i run the setup, it goes through the package selection process fine, but when it gets to the last stage of the install, it tells me theres no suitable drivers available. when i look at device manager, i see a generic vga (intel) controller. it doesnt even list any graphics card or display adapters. ive tried downloading both the original driver and the one you gave, but they both fail when trying to install. they both attempt to install correctly, but at the end they both say they failed. any ideas why? 5ec8ef588b
