hi ian, i have inkscape.exe running intermittently. it just hangs for a few seconds at startup and then starts up. i have tried uninstalling and re-installing to no avail. it looks like the tcldot network is completely defunct and it never even hits the access denied screen. also, i have a feeling i am "jumping the gun" because i also have nod32 installed. what should i do first? all i can say, it was the latest, upgrade with the combination of nod32 and inkscape together. both were working fine together before that. i have tried re-installing, repair, check box in the nospam from nod32, but nothing. the error is: inkscape.exe: the process cannot access the file because it is being used by another process. then there is another window that is in nod32 stating that inkscape is trying to access the main drive. it is since the last upgrade of inkscape and nod32. according to nod32 it is the 'correct driver'. the nod32 log file on my primary drive says nothing. is there any possibility to get rid of this problem? download jre jre 7u67.jar free! fix jar missing error. solve it yourself or get help using jar files.com client to fix jar error automatically.
