Counter Strike 1.6 1366x768 Patch Hit

The new patch promises to make laning a rather interesting experience. The champion picks have been tweaked to suit different playstyles and strategies. Thresh for example now has a built-in ward and is a bruiser, making him a threat in any lane. Back in the day, you would have to play two mages in order to have a lane advantage. With patch 2.2, we can't tell who the top laner is, but it does seem to be Kassadin or Stitches. He will be able to command the lane and have the most resources, with the help of his bubble and his ultimate. Cassiopeia and Heimerdinger were removed from the PBE, bringing along the new spell with them. This spell cannot be casted via the auto attack however if you hit them while in stealth they will call for help after a certain amount of time. /bq The tl;dr version is that the new patch has tons of new stuff, like the auto-attack range buff/nerf, E and Q buffs, Rift Herald buffs, Inhib, etc. Check out the full patch notes on the official LoL site if you are interested. Janna is back, and if you check out her base stats, she is quite an interesting champion. Juggernaut is back, and he has a... Akuma has suffered a lot of changes in recent patches, especially with the rework of his E. His E was given a buff and became a very powerful tool, but because of this, his ult has been nerfed and became a lot less efficient, because it forced Akuma to build an attack instead of defense or utility to maximize it's power and utility. However, the ult is still very strong and the improvements to it were quite significant, he has a larger blast radius and a lot of new close range CC's, making it a lot more versatile. 5ec8ef588b
