It's been an ongoing issue to get files in the following circumstance, FTP the file to a cloud provider Get WinSCP to retry the connection Transfer the file to the cloud However, it is taking so long to get a retry, which is causing jobs to fall behind. We already have the max retry and timeouts set to 10 minutes. Can we set the timeouts higher? Or a way to detect if it has been more than 10 minutes and then retry? A: Can we set the timeouts higher? Or a way to detect if it has been more than 10 minutes and then retry? Unfortunately, there is no way to retry the operation, unless you implement your own retry algorithm (WinSCP has a protected function called TransferOptions::setRetryCondition). If you have access to the code, we can add a new retry timeout option. If you don't, you can add a new feature request, but chances are low that a recent version will support this. Q: Can I get the count of records from a listview on a radiobuttonchange event using c#? I have a Listview with a radiobutton. Depending on the selection of the radiobutton I would like to load a different number of records into a listview depending on the radiobutton selected. This is the code I have so far. (I just haven't put the GetXml method in yet) private void Radiobutton_SelectionChanged(object sender, SelectionChangedEventArgs e) { int
