Hacking the sensor is a 3 step process. Within the Arduino IDE, select the correct board and then type in the following for the serial monitor: This gives you a terminal serial monitor which you can use to program the Arduino. Note you must use the correct serial port number for the Arduino. The port number is found in the setup() function and will be different for each board. The reason why you need the appropriate serial port is that you will be using the serial monitor to upload the game. Install the Arduino IDE. You will see several different terminal serial monitors that you can use. You will need to use the "SoftwareSerial" as this is the one you will be using. Step 2: Here is the part where it gets interesting. First you want to disable the wifi (you'll need to be on an open network or connect to your own). Arduino - Power Supply Before you start the Arduino IDE, you should ensure you have a power supply. These can be bought cheaply and are a vital part of the Arduino. Arduino USB Cable Arduino Notebook or Computer Arduino Board Arduino IDE Step 3: The following steps are for uploading the game to the Arduino. First, you will need to set the following in the IDE: Arduino - Software Serial Monitor Arduino IDE Arduino IDE - File Arduino IDE - New Arduino IDE -.pde For example you would type: Software Serial Monitor Arduino IDE Arduino IDE - New Arduino IDE -.pde There are a few default settings you can keep to ensure your program works: ARDUINO PLUGIN CABLE: You will need to keep this plugged into your computer whilst uploading the program. If you use USB to connect to your computer you do not need to have this plugged in. SENSOR PIN: The sensor pin is normally pin number 9. If you are using the wifi sensor

I installed Kaspersky Total Security for Windows and it locked up. I held down the power button and it self turned off. Then it restarted and asked to launch Kaspersky that never. Only to repeat. I still ran update and virus scan and it is going through the process. But I would like to have my computer back up and running again without this happening again. I installed Kaspersky Total Security for Windows and it locked up.
