Scientists at Adobe Research have created a new research endeavor called "Phase 1 of Internal Creative Cloud," or ICC. It's a research project that aims to "Explore gated content workflow systems, and to design, implement, and evaluate the new ingest phase of an Adobe Creative Cloud system." ICC will aim to unify creative processes across the different tools in the Creative Cloud ecosystem (Dynamo, Infinite.FX, Adobe Stock, etc.) into a single workflow. This set of tools will also include "a zero-copy ingestion, a new, flexible, and exhaustive content discovery, need-aware content organization, and seamless and customizable visual feedback mechanisms which will allow Adobe users to better plan their content pipelines," a paper by the ICC researchers explains.
