Between July 1, 1985 and June 30, 1988, 459 cases of tuberculosis were diagnosed in Italy by means of both bacteriological and histological criteria, among 5,961 cases of AIDS notified by the National AIDS Centre. Of these, 145 (29%) had pulmonary TB, 124 (26%) extrapulmonary TB and 152 (30%) were afebrile cases of disseminated TB. Of the 459 patients, 293 (65%) were hospitalised. The following factors were found to increase the probability of having pulmonary TB: age over 40 years, Karnofsky's score less than 50, the presence of opportunistic infections or neoplasia, and a history of a tuberculosis episode of at least 1 year's duration.
